5.1 Principles of processing

The Controller processes data in accordance with the following principles:

Principles of lawfulness, fairness and transparency: personal data must be processed legally and fairly and in a transparent way for the data subject.

Principle of purpose limitation: personal data shall be collected for specified, explicit and legitimate purposes and not further processed in a manner that is incompatible with those purposes; further processing for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes shall, in accordance with Article 89(1), not be considered to be incompatible with the initial purposes.

Principle of data minimisation: personal data must be adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary in relation to the purposes for which they are processed.

Principle of accuracy: personal data must be accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date; every reasonable step must be taken to ensure that personal data that are inaccurate, having regard to the purposes for which they are processed, are erased or rectified without delay.

Principle of storage limitation: personal data must be kept in a form which permits identification of data subjects for no longer than is necessary for the purposes for which the personal data are processed; personal data may be stored for longer periods insofar as the personal data will be processed solely for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes in accordance with Article 89(1) subject to implementation of the appropriate technical and organisational measures required by this Regulation in order to safeguard the rights and freedoms of the data subject.

Principle of integrity and confidentiality: personal data must be processed in a manner that ensures appropriate security of the personal data, including protection against unauthorised or unlawful processing and against accidental loss, destruction or damage, using appropriate technical or organisational measures.

Principle of accountability: the controller is responsible for compliance with the principles listed above and must be able to prove such compliance.

Principle of necessity and proportionality: essentially the same as the principle of data minimisation.

5.2 Legal ground of the processing based on GDPR

The Controller processes data in the course of the processing activities described in this Notice based on the following legal grounds:

❖ the data subject has given consent to the processing of his or her personal data for one or more specific purposes; [Processing pursuant to Article 6(1) a) of the Regulation]

Where the legal ground for the processing is based on voluntary written consent (either electronically or by post on paper), the data subject may withdraw their voluntary consent at any time by sending a written statement to any of the contact details of the Controller provided in Section 2.

Withdrawal of consent is free of charge and not subject to any conditions but the withdrawal of consent shall not affect the lawfulness of processing before its withdrawal.

- processing is necessary for the performance of a contract to which the data subject is party or in order to take steps at the request of the data subject prior to entering into a contract;
- processing is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation to which the Controller is subject;
- processing is necessary for the purposes of the legitimate interests pursued by the controller or by a third party, except where such interests are overridden by the interests or fundamental rights and freedoms of the data subject which require protection of personal data, in particular where the data subject is a child.

The Controller indicates the legal ground for the processing of personal data in Chapter 7 of this Notice for each processing activity separately, regardless of whether the processing is based on the data subject's voluntary consent, necessary for the performance of a contract, or required by law.

5.3 Duration of the processing(s)

For the personal data, the duration of the processing is the same as the existence of the purpose of the processing.

The personal data are erased immediately and permanently once the purpose of the processing ceases to exist.

Similarly to the legal ground for processing, the duration of the processing is also indicated in the Notice for each processing activity separately, regardless of whether the processing is based on the data subject's voluntary consent, the performance of a contract, or mandatory processing required by law.

6 Visitor processing on websites managed by the Controller

This Policy applies to the following websites managed by the Controller:

https://easytrack.hu

For the purposes of this Policy, Visitors are: Natural persons browsing the website, using the services of the website and ordering services from the Controller.

6.1 General information on the role of a Cookie

A cookie is a small piece of data (a variable alphanumeric packet of information) that is sent to the Visitor's device by the server of the website being browsed. The cookie is stored in the browser program of the Visitor's computer, phone or tablet and can later be read by the sending server. The cookie cannot be read by any other website, only the one that installed it. Cookies give information about Visitors' habits when using the website. Cookies can be used for a variety of purposes, such as to measure the number of visitors to the site or to facilitate browsing by remembering pages previously visited within the site. None of the cookies contain any personal data that would directly allow anyone to contact the Visitor by e-mail, telephone or post. By themselves, cookies are not able to identify the Visitor, they are only able to recognise the Visitor's device. If the Visitor does not wish to accept the use of cookies on the website, they can also configure the web browser used to inform them of the installation of cookies or to prevent the installation of cookies.

Functioning of cookies

When visiting the website of the Controller, the Controller installs cookies on the device (computer, phone or tablet) used to visit the website. At the start of browsing the websites, the Controller informs the Visitors about the use of cookies in a pop-up window when the main page loads.

The Visitor's consent is not required for the installation of cookies necessary to ensure the functionality and user friendliness of the websites operated by the Controller. Anonymous visit analysis does not involve the processing of personal data and therefore does not require consent.

The Visitor's consent is required for cookies used for additional purposes, such as statistical and marketing data collection, to function. The Visitor provides their consent in a pop-up window.

The Visitor may at any time choose to disable and delete cookies in their Internet browser settings. Please note, however, that without the use of cookies, you are not able to access many of the features that make browsing easier, and some of our services may not function properly.

Managing cookie settings in browsers

Visitors can change their cookie settings via their browser. They can disable the use of cookies by activating a setting in their browser that allows them to refuse all or some cookies. These settings are usually available in the 'settings' or 'preferences' menu of their browser. For more information, visit the following links:

However, please also note that certain site features or services may not function properly without cookies.

The cookies used on the website are not in themselves capable of identifying the user.

Types of cookies

Cookies can be either temporary or session cookies, which are valid for the duration of the session, or persistent or saved cookies, and can be first-party (internal) or third-party (external) cookies.

Cookies valid during the browsing session

Browsing session cookies enable the Visitor to be recognisable during a visit to the website and thus allow the browser to remember any page changes or selections made during the browsing session from page to page within the website. These cookies make it quick and easy for you to navigate through many pages on a website and go back without having to identify yourself on each page you visit or repeat processes (such as completing a form). Such cookies are automatically deleted from your device when you finish browsing the site or close your browser.

Persistent cookies

Persistent cookies are cookies that remain 'persistent' on the Visitor's device for a certain period of time (their validity period is defined in days, weeks, months or years) after the browsing process has expired, and therefore allow the recall of the user's preferences or actions during a subsequent visit to the site (e.g. they can be used to store the data entered in a form on a given page). Saved cookies are stored on the Visitor's device until the expiry date, but may be deleted by the Visitor before the predefined deadlines expire.

Cookies from the website operator

Cookies from the server of the browsed website. In the present case, these are cookies from the server hosting the website operated by the Controller, which ensure functionality and user friendliness, the general characteristics and operation of which are described above. These cookies record the IP address of the Visitor's device, the pages visited during the use of the website, and possibly (based on the Visitor's decision) the data entered.

Cookies are used by the Controller to ensure that users registered on its websites are granted the appropriate permissions; once the User has accessed the website, the necessary permissions are granted. No other information is stored by these cookies in this context, including when they were accessed, who accessed them, the Controller simply verifies the access rights by using them.

These cookies are session cookies, i.e. they are valid during the browsing session. This means that when someone starts browsing the site, the cookie is activated and then persists for up to 15 minutes after the user's last activity, or expires when the user exits.

An exception to this is the cookie that is stored on the Visitor's browsing device for 365 days, based on the Visitor's decision.

Third-party cookies

Third-party cookies do not originate from the Controller or the server hosting the website. These cookies are also saved on your computer, phone or tablet when you visit the site, as described below.

6.2 Processing performed by the cookies used by the Controller on the easytrack.hu website

The Controller informs its Visitors that the following cookies are used by the Controller to measure the traffic on the www.easytrack.hu website and its sub-sites and to monitor the behaviour of its visitors, to compile statistics and to improve the effectiveness of its advertising:

- Google Analytics
- Google AdWords conversion tracking:
- Hotjar and
- Facebook Remarketing.

Google cookies

Google AdWords displays the easytrack.hu page on the Google advertising platform. When a Visitor clicks on a Google ad and enters our website, Google Adwords places a cookie ("conversion cookie") on the device used by the Visitor. This cookie expires after 30 days. The cookie is not used by the data controller for personal identification. As long as the cookie is in effect, when the Visitor visits certain pages, the Controller and Google will see that someone has clicked on the advertisement that redirected the user to our own site. Each AdWords customer receives a different cookie. Cookies may therefore not be tracked through the websites of AdWords customers. The information collected by the conversion cookie is used to generate conversion statistics for AdWords customers who opt for conversion tracking. AdWords customers can see how many users clicked on their own advertisements and were redirected to a specific page using the conversion ID.

No information suitable for personal identification is passed to the Visitor or the Controller. If the Visitor does not wish to participate in the tracking process, they can refuse to allow the system to place the necessary cookies - for example, they can set their browser not to allow cookies to be placed automatically. Visitors can also prevent the placement of conversion cookies by setting their browser to block cookies from the "googleadservices.com" domain.

Google Analytics© files are used to help monitor the site and to obtain information about how the site is used (such as the number of visitors to the site, the pages viewed, the country region of the visitors - where the user is browsing from, where the User "comes from" - from which other site -, the browser used, the operating system, the Internet service provider and the resolution of the monitor used, the time the page was browsed, when the page was left). We use this information to compile statistics and to further improve the site.

During the visit analysis, the Controller does not collect the data in a way that would allow the identification of the Visitor's browsing device, so we cannot identify the Visitor based on their browsing habits. No personal data are managed during the visit analysis.

The anonymous data collected in this way is also accessible by Google Ireland Ltd (Gordon House, Barrow Street, Dublin 4, Ireland), which is the owner and operator of the Google Analytics tools.

If the Visitor has consented to the collection of browsing data for marketing purposes, Google Ireland Ltd will also use this data for its own purposes to deliver targeted advertising to the browsing user. In that activity Google Ireland Ltd. combines the data collected by the cookies with the IP address of the browsing device to determine the interests that can be identified based on the browsing patterns on that particular device, and then delivers targeted advertising to that device.

Cookies used for marketing purposes only work with the Visitor's consent, by also identifying the Visitor's device when the data is collected.

Further information:

- https://www.google.com/analytics
- https://support.google.com/analytics/answer/2838718?hl=hu

Google Analytics© cookies are permanent cookies and are stored for a maximum of two years, but in practice this is between two hours and six months, depending on the type of cookie.

For more information about cookies, including the viewing, managing and deleting cookies placed, please visit http://www.allaboutcookies.org. You can opt-out of tracking by Google Analytics on all pages at https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout.

Facebook cookies and pixel

On the website the Controller uses the "Facebook pixel" of the Facebook social network operated by Facebook Inc. (1 Hacker Way, Menlo Park, CA 94025, USA) or, if you live in the EU, by Facebook Ireland Ltd., 4 Grand Canal Square, Grand Canal Harbour, Dublin 2, Ireland (the "Facebook"). The Facebook pixel allows Facebook to manage the visitors to the website as a target group to display ads (called Facebook ads). Accordingly, the Controller uses the Facebook pixel to ensure that the Facebook ads embedded by them only appear to Facebook users who have shown an interest in the Controller's offers. In other words, the Facebook pixel is designed to ensure that Facebook ads match the potential interest of users and do not cause a distraction. The Facebook pixel also allows the Controller to analyse the effectiveness of ads on Facebook for statistical and market research purposes, such as e.g., whether users have reached our website by clicking on a Facebook ad. Facebook embeds the Facebook pixel directly when our website is opened and then it may place a socalled cookie, i.e. a small file on the visitor's device. If you later log in to Facebook or visit Facebook pages while logged in, then it will register your visit to the site in your profile. The data obtained about visitors are anonymous to us, which means that we cannot use it to determine your identity. At the same time, the data are stored and processed by Facebook, so they can be linked to the user profile. Facebook processes the data in accordance with its own privacy policy. So, for more information about the operation of the remarketing pixel and the display of Facebook ads in general, please see Facebook's privacy policy at https://www.facebook.com/policy.php. You can opt out of the recording of data by Facebook pixel and the use of your data for the purpose of displaying Facebook ads. To do that, open the Facebook page and follow the instructions on the settings of your personal ads: https://www.facebook.com/settings?tab=ads, the US page is http://www.aboutads.info/choices/ and the EU page is http://www.youronlinechoices.com/. The settings are platform-independent, i.e., they apply to both desktop computers and mobile devices.

When displaying targeted advertisements, we can use Google's and Facebook's tools to display our own advertisements on the Visitor's device, but Google and Facebook also use the data necessary for that for their own purposes, i.e. to display third-party advertisements. The display of such advertisements is based on the interests of the Visitor concluded from their browsing habits.

In that activity, Google Ireland Ltd. (Gordon House, Barrow Street, Dublin 4, Ireland) and Meta Platforms Ireland Ltd. (4 Grand Canal Square, Grand Canal Harbour, Dublin 2, Ireland) determine the interests that can be identified by combining browsing habits data with your browser's ID based on your browsing habits from that browser, and then deliver targeted advertisements to that device. So the data are not directly linked to the person of the Visitor, but to their device used for browsing, primarily the browser.

Google and Meta (Facebook) do not have access to any data other than the data described in this clause.

To find out more on the above, visit the Facebook page: https://developers.facebook.com/products. Such cookies only work on the site with the Visitor's consent.

The Controller also uses Hotjar's analytics service: Hotjar Ltd. ("Hotjar") (http://www.hotjar.com, 3 Lyons Range, 20 Bisazza Street, Sliema SLM 1640, Malta, Europe). With Hotjar's analysis, the Controller can understand and evaluate the habits of the Visitors on the website (e.g. how much time they spend on certain subpages, which links they click on, etc.). During the operation of this feature, the information collected about the visit to this website is transmitted to Hotjar's servers in Ireland, where it is stored by Hotjar.

The following information may be recorded by the visitor's device and browser:

- IP address of the user's device (collected and stored in an anonymous format)
- Screen size of the user's device
- The type of device and browser used by the user
- User location (country only)

With Hotjar, visits to and use of the website are analysed and reported on separately. Hotjar also uses the services of third parties such as Google Analytics and Optimizely in this function. These third parties mentioned in relation to the data transfer may store information that the user's browser sends when viewing the website (e.g. cookies, IP bid requests, etc.). The cookies used by Hotjar are not deleted for different periods of time, some cookies are automatically deleted after the current visit, but there are also cookies that are kept for up to 365 days.

If you wish to opt-out of Hotjar's logging of data, please visit https://www.hotjar.com/opt-out. Hotjar's privacy policy can be found here (https://www.hotjar.com/legal/policies/privacy).

Data subjects affected by the data processing: all Visitors, Users visiting the websites operated by the Controller, regardless of the use of the services available on the website.

Legal ground of the processing:

In the case of processing of data which is technically necessary for the provision of the service (session ID), the legal ground for the processing of the data is the legitimate interest of the Controller pursuant to Article 6(1)(f) of the GDPR, given that the processing of data does not entail any risk for the Visitor, while at the same time the usability of the website, as the availability of our services by electronic means can only be ensured in this way.

On this legal ground, the Controller only processes data (e.g. IP address, browser type and screen resolution used, language displayed, current country) which are necessary for the operation of the website, for its user-friendliness, for providing essential functions and for the security of the computer system.

The Controller will not transfer the data to third parties or process them for any other purpose.

The Controller performs general visit analysis by collecting anonymous data, so no personal data are processed in this context.

Purpose of the processing: ensuring the proper functioning of the website

You can consent to the collection of data for statistical and marketing purposes by setting the slider in the Special cookie settings window that pops up when you start browsing the website and by clicking on the "Save" button.

Google Adwards: The information collected by the conversion cookie is used to generate conversion statistics for AdWords customers who opt for conversion tracking.

11 Data security

The Service Provider shall take all measures necessary to ensure secure and damage-free handling of data and the installation and operation of data processing systems required for this. The Service Provider shall ensure that no unauthorised persons may access, disclose, transfer, modify or erase the processed data. The processed data may only be accessed by the Service Provider or their employees designated as recipients of the data, and shall not be disclosed by the Service Provider to third parties who are not authorised to access the data.

The Service Provider shall take all reasonable measures to ensure the physical protection of the data. The Service Provider shall also impose the above commitment on their employees involved in data processing. The Service Provider shall under no circumstances collect special data revealing racial origin or nationality, being part of an ethnic minority, political opinions and any affiliation with political parties, religious or philosophical beliefs or trade union membership, or data concerning health conditions, sex life, harmful addiction, sex life or a criminal record. If the Controller becomes aware that a user has placed data in the database that qualify as special data under the provisions of Act CXII of 2011, they shall delete such data without delay and shall be entitled to terminate the registration of the data subject without delay.

Technical and organisational measures taken by the controller, including technical and organisational measures to ensure the security of the data:

- a. "Need to know" principle: to ensure that only those whose tasks require it have access to the data. Access should be reviewed from time to time. Access should be personalised (avoiding the use of the same username+password pair by the same group). Technical blocking of data downloads.
- b. Use of automatic screen savers to ensure that unattended devices cannot be accessed without control.
- c. Use of anti-virus software: In addition to installing the right software, regular updates are also of paramount importance, as well as proper internal policies and awareness raising (e.g. not opening suspicious attachments).
- d. Firewalls: If the network has external connections (either to other networks or to the Internet), the use of firewalls is also essential, with proper configuration.
- e. Software updates: The controller should ensure that the software used by them is properly updated, as newer versions may contain improvements that could, for example, prevent external attacks.
- f. Remote access: Remote accesses may pose a potential risk to the system, so securing them may require increased caution and the introduction of further security measures.

- g. Wireless networks: Connections to unknown, untrusted networks should be avoided where possible and appropriate rules for their use are required. In addition, technical security measures are also necessary (e.g. use of appropriate encryption).
- h. Portable devices: When personal data are stored on portable devices (e.g. USB, laptop, phone, etc.), appropriate encryption should be applied. In addition, a password of appropriate strength should be required for access. The possibility of remote erasure is a good way to reduce risks.
- Logging and audit: Use of intrusion detection systems with access logs and appropriate control of accesses
- j. Backups: When backups are made, data in the backup should be protected to the same high level as the data in the live system.
- k. Replacing used devices: For devices to be replaced, arrangements shall be made for erasing the data. This obligation applies to all types of devices, i.e. it is always worth checking whether the device may contain personal data. However, a simple erasure or formatting is not enough, as data may be recoverable from it. A software solution must be in place to prevent this. In some cases, physical destruction may be an alternative to erasure.
- I. Physical security: In addition to technological security measures, the existence of appropriate physical security measures must be guaranteed (e.g. alarm system, access control system, protection of server rooms, proper placement of monitors, clean desk policy, etc.).
- m. Human factor: The human factor is often the greatest risk in terms of security measures. In this regard, awareness building, education, regular monitoring of compliance with rules are key to maintaining data security.
